Looking to Your Future...

Supplying you with dependable, low-cost electric power today is only a part of TP&L's obligation to its customers. Another essential part of this obligation is its planning and building ahead for your electrical needs tomorrow.

Two big generating units are now under construction, and will be ready to serve you in 1965 and 1966. When completed they will add three-quarter million kilowatts to the Company's capability.

Even as these plants are going up, other plans are on the drawing boards extending to 1980.

It is only through such planning and building ahead that TP&L and other investor-owned electric utility companies are able to keep pace with the growing demands for electricity in homes, businesses and industries.

For example, the average TP&L residential customer used more than four times as much electricity in 1963 than he used in 1948.

In 1964, TP&L expects to spend more than $52 million on new construction. During the 1964-1970 period, construction expenditures by all investor-owned electric companies of the nation are expected to exceed $34 billion.

Past records and projected plans of TP&L and the nation's other investor-owned electric companies are your assurance of an adequate and economical supply of electricity in the future.
